Dear Potential Exhibitor,

On behalf of Mayo Clinic, Mayo Clinic Department of Cardiovascular Medicine, and course directors, Drs. Yong-Mei Cha, Paul Friedman, and Fred Kusumoto. We are pleased to announce the 2019 Cardiac Rhythm Device Summit course, which will be held June 21-23, 2019 at the Sofitel New York in New York City.

The program will provide an update on the indications, follow up, and management of cardiac rhythm technology, emphasizing clinical pearls. Evolving device technology has increased programming complexity, follow-up, and management. Cardiac implantable device management related to electrophysiology remains a major part of daily practice for cardiologists, electrophysiologists, and non-physician caregivers involved in patient management. The program format includes lectures, panel, and question and answer sessions. The course expected attendance is 100-125 attendees annually.

You may find additional course details on the course website: cveducation.mayo.edu
